welcomed by Mayor P. J. Lyons, who paid high tribute to him as a man, statesman and patriot.

The formal welcome was then delivered by Colonel Edward Lafayette Russell, who said;

"Your coming among us has been a source of inspiration to our people, who are familiar wift, your record as a soldier and a citizen. Your wise statesmanship, coupled with your public acts and public declarations, have given them confidence in your sincerity of purpose and partiotism. Since you have been President you have demonstrated by your administration of our Federal affairs that you are loyal and devoted to our free institutions, coined out of the blood, sacrifice and treasure of our ancestors. Such is the faith of our people in you as a patriot that they believe you would cheerfully surrender your life rather than endanger the sacred trust that has been confided to your patriotic keeping."

THE MISCKLENBURG, CHASE CITY, VA., October 23.—The Virginia-Carolina Fox Hunters' Association held its first annual incetting here to-night, and from the numbers of well known sportsmen who are present it looks as though the work would prove a strenious one for hunters, hounds and horses, and that only those foxes that take to the far distant woods can hope to escape sudden and violent death.
In the hotel lobby to-night there was no subject mentioned except hound and fox, with an occasional allusion to horse.
Every one is decorated with a red fox, the insignia of the clus, and every one is eagerly waiting for daylight, when master of hounds, Overby, will sound his horn and the fun will begin.

DANGER OF LYNCHING.

The first witness introduced was Walter E. Cannaday, who lived at Check. He had a conversation with James R. Richards, who told him that John would give up if there was no danger of lynching. He left a few minutes afterword for Shawsville to capture Richards in the should attempt to board a train. It was at the time of leaving that he had information that Richards could not be found at home.

GOVERNMENT WITNESS.

Lemuel Farris swapped John Richards a 22 rifle two years ago for a musket. He was sure of these facts: On cross examination he wasn't certain whether it was in 1803 or 1905, but it was two years ago. This is 1802? He didn't pay any attention to whom he got the rifle from. He traded the musket to his father, and thinks he got $1.50, but could not remember who he got it from, but was confident that he had not had the gun over a month. He traded $170 at 0 much he could not say where he got the rifle.

He heard that afternoon that the horse had run away with Francis and hurt him. That night he went to Knopp's home, and heard the doctors say that Francis had been shot. He soon left and came back the next morning, when he learned that Francis was dead. He went back to his aunt's, when Walter Connor came along and said they knew who had killed Francis, and then asked where John was going on that horse that morning. He said he did not know where John was, as he left him at home the day before.

The afternoon of Richards's trial was cavide entirely to proving the prisoner's alibi. Only four witnesses were examined; they were Maynard Richards, brother, and Mass Minnie Richards, sister, and Pierce Vest and Frank Clowers cousins of the necused.
